Last stop for the gravy train?

Capital budget items that Ford, as a councillor, unsuccessfully tried to remove include $1.2 million for city's 311 helpline, $44.7 million for future bike network expansion, $28.1 million pegged for Civic Improvement Places

One of Rob Ford's first big tasks as mayor will be passing a capital budget currently full of projects he has tried to kill.

Among them will be the glass-walled $88-million waterfront arena, with four stacked ice pads, approved in principle by council in late August even though only $34 million in funding — from Ottawa, and tied to its waterfront location — has been found.

"We shouldn't be in the business of building hockey arenas. Why doesn't the private sector come in and build this?" Ford told the Toronto Star at the time, suggesting the project would be in serious trouble if he was elected.

"We have to stop the wasteful spending. The gravy train has to come to an end."

Officials trying to ID fire victims

More than 24 hours after two women died in an intense Scarborough fire, officials still don't know the identities of the victims or the cause of the blaze.

The two-alarm fire ripped through 41 Kimbermount Dr. late Saturday morning, killing two women and sending a young man to hospital with severe burns.

"It's possible that some or all three of the young adults are international students from mainland China," said Toronto Fire Capt. Mike Strapko. "But as far as I know, that hasn't been confirmed."

$400,000
The blaze caused about $400,000 in damages, according to the Toronto fire department.

At least 50 firefighters and 12 trucks responded to the two-alarm blaze, which gutted the house, Strapko said.

Police and fire officials were on scene again yesterday and the area surrounding the home remained cordoned off with police tape.

"The investigation is still ongoing. I believe the post-mortem is scheduled for (today)," Strapko said.

Police are asking anyone with information to call 416-222-TIPS.

Who will take the wheel at the TTC?

◗ Council insiders say job needs a seasoned politician with transit experience ◗ Others suggest new blood needed to spur innovation

Except for the mayor and possibly the budget chief, no city council committee post has as much profile as that of the TTC chair.

Voters who don't know their own ward councillors would probably recognize the two most recent TTC chairs, Adam Giambrone and Howard Moscoe. With the city's transit priorities a key plank in mayor-elect Rob Ford's platform, the coveted post has the potential to make one councillor a household name.

Front-runners include:

▶ Karen Stintz (Ward 16, Eglinton-Lawrence). Stintz opposed the TTC's agreement with Build Toronto for a new transit headquarters in her ward at York Mills and Yonge Street.

If she were on the TTC, Stintz said cleaning up the system would be her top priority, as well as implementing the regional Presto fare card. She also supports working closely with Metrolinx on whatever form Toronto transit expansion takes.

▶ Peter Milczyn (Ward 5, Etobicoke-Lakeshore). A member of the outgoing TTC, Milczyn's experience there is preceded by three years on the budget committee. Although he's known as right-winger, he has been a fairly non-partisan, common sense voice on the TTC.

"I have a lot of ideas about what the future of the TTC could be in terms of Metrolinx, in terms of the smart card, in terms of even beyond Metrolinx, into regional transit issues," he said.

The dark horses:

▶ Josh Colle (Ward 15, Eglinton-Lawrence). Sitting in former TTC chair Howard Moscoe's old ward, Colle is the son of Liberal MPP Mike Colle (Eglinton-Lawrence), a former TTC chair himself.

He doesn't believe in the subway-versus-light rail debate. The Eglinton Transit City line will operate underground like a subway, he said. He also thinks the transit chair is sufficiently important to warrant a public election.

▶ Michael Thompson (Ward 37, Scarborough Centre). This former transit commissioner is a less obvious, but somewhat logical choice. He represents the suburbs but far from Ford's base in Etobicoke, something it's been suggested the new mayor needs. Thompson favoured a subway in Scarborough, but has resisted what he calls "the parochial approach" and subsequently supported light rail.

▶ David Shiner (Ward 24, Willowdale). The former budget committee chair, who sat on the TTC about six years ago, thinks the system has some big challenges ahead, including upcoming contract talks. Shiner would like to see more parking at stations and free parking restored for Metropass users. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

DAVID COOPER/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

▶ Josh Colle is considered a dark horse candidate for the job of TTC chair, but the council newcomer has his own transportation experience via a career with Bridgepoint Group, a consulting firm that deals in transportation and infrastructure projects and the Greater Toronto Airports Authority.

Whispering words of wisdom

‘Dog Whisperer’ counts Oprah Winfrey, Nicolas Cage and Vin Diesel among his clients

Dressed in matching bumblebee outfits for Halloween, Ruby and Ava, a pair of velvet-furred pugs, were attracting a lot of attention at a Cabbagetown pet store yesterday.

But the real star of the show was Cesar Millan, 40, the self-described “Dog Whisperer” whose television show by the same name enjoys a cult-like following.

As part of a cross-Canada tour to promote his latest book, How to Raise the Perfect Dog, Millan made a guest appearance at a Pet Valu store on Carlton Street.

“He’s almost like a pop star,” said Dave Fechner, who has owned the Pet Valu franchise on Carlton for 15 years. “When they asked me if I would host him here at the store, I said, ‘Are you kidding? Of course!’”

Hundreds lined up with their dogs and braved the bitter cold for up to three hours because of his reputation for being able to calm and control even the most aggressive and unruly canine.

During a press briefing, Millan, who jumped the Mexico-U.S. border 20 years ago and has no formal training in animal psychology, shared his thoughts.

Be a “pack leader,” he advised.

“Rules, boundaries and limitations. These are what calm the body and teach the mind to surrender. Then you give affection,” Millan added, sounding a bit like a parenting coach.

Toronto police are searching for three suspects after a stabbing incident early yesterday morning.

Police say around 3:35 a.m. they responded to a call of a stabbing in the area of King Street West and Tyndall Avenue.

Police allege a victim was approached by three men and chased by one man brandishing a knife.

The victim was stabbed several times, police say.

Breast milk banks proposed

In a move that would help feed sick and premature infants, the Canadian Paediatric Society is calling for breast milk banks to be built across the country to help feed sick and premature infants.

The banks, one of which is being planned for Mount Sinai Hospital in Toronto, would freeze and distribute pasteurized mother's milk as a healthier alternative to formula.

"We've long, long, long wanted a milk bank in Ontario," says Dr. Sharon Unger, a Mount Sinai neonatologist.

"Our hope is that we would supply milk to all of Ontario, so we'd have depot sites or collection sites throughout the province and we'd be a central processing plant," says Unger, who is medical director of Toronto's Milk Bank Initiative.

Khadr sentenced to 8 years in jail

THE CANADIAN PRESS/JANET HAMLIN

▶ Omar Khadr

Canadian war-criminal Omar Khadr deserves to serve 40 more years behind bars for war crimes, a military jury decided yesterday. But their decision was overruled by a pre-trial agreement that capped his sentence at eight years.

After more than eight hours of deliberations over two days, the seven military officers called for the hefty punishment not knowing about the agreed-on cap.

The pre-trial agreement also calls for Khadr, 24, to serve one more year in U.S. custody, where he has been for the past eight years. The U.S. government would support his bid to apply to serve the rest of his sentence in a Canadian prison.

A spokeswoman for Foreign Affairs Minister Lawrence Cannon would not speculate on whether Canada would agree to the request.

"Should Omar Khadr submit an application, he would be treated like any other Canadian who applies for a transfer," Melissa Lantsman said in an email. "The decision on any potential transfer will be made in accordance with current law. No decision can be made until an application is received."

A boot camp for walking tall

Marion Harris teaches women the proper way to walk in high heels

LUCAS OLENIUK/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

▶ Marion Harris of Toronto's Feldenkrais Centre teaches a class on how to walk in high heels.

Marilyn Monroe put her faith in the Spring-O-Lator.

A leather-like elastic strap in her high heels added spring to her step, relieving some of the weight from the balls of her feet.

Toronto's Marion Harris prefers a less technical approach. She runs a "boot camp" that helps women learn to walk well in stilettos.

When dressing up, the 79-year-old still dons four-inch heels and manages a fluid, graceful stride.

High heels damage the feet, she acknowledges. They cramp the toes, punish the metatarsals, shorten the calf muscles, and risk injuring the knees and lower back.

But they are also sexy.

"My aim is not to promote high heels," Harris says of her High Heels Boot Camp. "But the girls are going to wear them anyway and they might as well learn how to walk in them."

Harris teaches a movement-awareness technique called the Feldenkrais Method, developed in the 1940s by Moshe Feldenkrais.

Harris trained directly under Feldenkrais at Amherst College in Massachusetts beginning in 1980 and founded her Toronto Feldenkrais Centre in 1983. Among other skills, she teaches how to walk — not only with feet and legs, but also with pelvis, ribs and shoulders.

"Walking is an act of the entire body," Harris says, sashaying gently in her chair to help make the point. "Some women hold themselves rigid," she says. "First of all because their posture might not be very good in the first place and because being on high heels makes them unsure of themselves."

At her periodic workshops, Harris takes students through a series of exercises and meditations.

The day ends with graduates strutting down a red carpet to a DJ remix of Stayin' Alive.

"It's certainly better to learn how to walk properly in heels (than not)," says Toronto podiatrist Hartley Miltchin, who owns Monroe's Spring-O-Lator shoes as part of his celebrity shoe collection.

"But there is always going to be physical damage by walking in heels."

Harris's next High Heels Boot Camp runs today. For details, visit feldenkraiscentre.com. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Well-heeled

For high-heel initiates, Marion Harris offers three starting tips.

- Buy a good shoe. A good one cushions the ball of the foot, which takes most of the weight, and cradles the foot for a more even weight distribution than otherwise. "High-heeled sandals, with little straps around the toes, give absolutely no support," she says.
- Start low. "Today, the girls are going from flip-flops and sandals to five-inch heels. It's insanity. Women of my generation started at an earlier age. We started with lower heels and gradually worked our way up."

Down to the home stretch

- Sarah Palin makes TV appearance, says Obama 'blew it' on promise of fixing economy
- During his own speech, president says the struggle facing supporters is 'worth it'

President Barack Obama took his soaring campaign rhetoric to Ohio yesterday — bashing the opposition and imploring Democrats to go to the polls — as he wound up a four-state campaign swing designed to stem an expected Republican tide in tomorrow's congressional election.

Obama and his Democrats have a hard sell in an election year where the jobless rate remains stuck near 10 per cent under the weight of an economy that is only creeping out of a deep recession. Millions of Americans have lost their homes — what amounts to their life savings — in mortgage foreclosures.

Obama said he was not giving up hope that Democrats will beat the bad odds on election day, keeping the party on track to move forward with his promised reforms. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

N. Korea and Iran 'worry' CSIS boss

"We have ... active investigations of people who are trying to find precursor nuclear material in Canada."
JAMES FADDEN, CSIS HEAD

The head of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service quietly told a crowd of insiders he's worried about North Korea and Iran surreptitiously trolling Canada for components to build an atomic bomb.

In a previously unreported speech in May to academics and former intelligence officials, CSIS director Dick Fadden spoke of the spy service's "active investigations" of people trying to procure nuclear materials.

The threat of weapons of mass destruction is an "area where we have to worry far more than we did not too long ago," Fadden said. "North Korea and Iran being people that we worry about the most." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Three men killed by train

Three men killed after being plowed down by a Via Rail train in southwest Montreal yesterday may not have heard the locomotive coming because of the location.

The incident took place under a major freeway interchange with large concrete pillars that may have muffled the sound of the approaching train, police said.

The train was on its way to Montreal from Toronto.

Border clashes up in Canada

The number of clashes at Canada's borders rose again last year as more officers pulled their guns and swung their truncheons to deal with troublesome travellers.

So-called use-of-force incidents are up 170 per cent in just four years.

The actual number of incidents — 137 in the fiscal year that ended on March 31 — is a fraction of the 80 million people processed at border points over the period.

Sex abuse victims blocked from walk

Participants from a dozen countries who said they were raped and molested by priests flocked to Rome

▶ Pope Benedict XVI delivers a blessing yesterday.

Italian paramilitary police blocked a boulevard leading to the Vatican to prevent a march in Rome yesterday by survivors of clergy sex abuse from reaching St. Peter's Square.

When Vatican spokesman the Rev. Federico Lombardi came to speak with organizers yesterday evening, a protester shouted "Shame, shame" in Italian, and Lombardi left, escorted by police.

He later said that if organizers want to see him he would "gladly" receive them inside his office. Shortly after that, one of the organizers, Gary Bergeron, did meet briefly with Lombardi and the two agreed to meet last night after the end of the protest.

The event, which aims to show survivors worldwide they are not alone — is being organized by Bergeron and another Boston man, Bernie McDaid, who were abused by the same priest starting in the sixth grade. Bergeron said he told Lombardi that the abuse survivors have been "waiting a lifetime to be able to stand up and speak out."

Protesters held signs with slogans including "Hands off children."

Hiding the truth?

- Eight years after the U.S. scandal erupted in Boston Gary Bergeron and Bernie McDaid say the Vatican hasn't taken sufficient responsibility or put in place universal prevention programs to protect children.
- They formed a non-profit group, Survivor's Voice, as a way to bring together victims from around the world — a campaign that kicked into gear this year after the abuse scandal exploded anew on a global scale with revelations of thousands of victims in Europe and beyond, of bishops who covered up for pedophile priests and of Vatican officials who turned a blind eye to the crimes.

Ottawa man found dead in Mexico: Family

Canadians have been at the centre of several violent incidents in Mexico over the past several years

An Ottawa-area businessman reported missing during a trip to Mexico has been found dead, his family confirmed yesterday.

Daniel Dion's niece Franceska Dion said yesterday that she could "confirm the sad news."

Police in southern Mexico reported they found Dion's missing rental car completely burned with a corpse in the trunk.

But investigators wouldn't publicly confirm that the body was that of Dion, who was last seen about a week ago in the resort city of Acapulco.

According to Guerrero state Investigative Police director Fernando Montreal, one of the vehicle's license plates was not burned in the fire, which allowed police to identify it as Dion's white Jetta.

HO/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Daniel Dion

The car was discovered on a road in Zumpango del Rio, just north of the state capital of Chilpancingo. The town is about 130 kilometres from Acapulco, also in Guerrero state.

Dion, 51, was a frequent traveller to Mexico and was very familiar with Acapulco.

Dion was last heard from while at a restaurant in Acapulco Oct. 22. He didn't show up for a business appointment the next day and failed to make his daily phone calls home.

Distraught family members of the Sherbrooke, Que.-native travelled to Mexico last week to meet with authorities and organize search efforts of their own. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bomb had travelled on passenger jets

Two bombs mailed from Yemen were intercepted last week Plot exposes gaps in air cargo security

One of two powerful bombs mailed from Yemen to Chicago-area synagogues travelled on two passenger planes within the Middle East, a Qatar Airways spokesman said yesterday.

The U.S. said the plot bears the hallmarks of al-Qaida's offshoot in Yemen and vowed to destroy the group.

The airline spokesman said a package containing explosives hidden in a printer cartridge arrived in Qatar Airways' hub in Doha, Qatar, on one of the carrier's flights from the Yemeni capital Sanaa.

It was then shipped on a separate Qatar Airways plane to Dubai in the United Arab Emirates, where it was discovered by authorities late Thursday or early Friday.

▶ Suspected bombmaker Ibrahim Hassan al-Asiri

A second, similar package turned up in England on Friday.

The airline did not give any timeframe for the two flights in question — the airline operates daily passenger flights from Yemen that could also carry courier packages.

U.S. President Barack Obama's deputy national security adviser John Brennan said authorities "have to presume" there might be more potential mail bombs like the ones pulled from planes in England and the United Arab Emirates.

Can oceans predict the future?

Scientists are urging governments around the world to invest in a ocean-based system that could provide warnings of droughts, floods and other environmental disasters.

The researchers meeting this week in Beijing say countries are moving too slowly in setting up a global system that would essentially monitor the oceans' vital signs.

Trevor Platt, a marine biologist with the Partnership for Observation of Global Oceans, says the system of devices would cost up to $15 billion.

Platt says data could do everything from indicate changes in fish populations to measuring how acidic the ocean is becoming in a certain area. The scientists will press government ministers meeting at a summit in Beijing, giving them a target of 2015 to have the system in place.

Platt says incidents like the recent floods in Pakistan and forest fires in Russia are traceable to the oceans and could have been predicted by systems in the water and on land. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Grameen Bank to come to Canada?

◗ Grameen America branches in New York City, Omaha ◗ Small loans can help rehabilitate credit history

A man who won the Nobel Peace Prize for helping poor entrepreneurs around the world says he'd love to see his microfinancing ideas implemented in Canada.

"We'd be delighted to do that if we're invited to do it," Muhammad Yunus said of establishing one of his Grameen Bank branches in Canada.

The institution helps people with limited access to credit. Proponents say it could help struggling Canadians — including newcomers and members of aboriginal communities.

Several attempts have been made to establish microloan models in Canada, but most have not lasted.

Founded in Bangladesh in 1983, Grameen Bank has provided $9.7 billion in microloans, primarily to women. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rousseff elected leader of Brazil

Former Marxist guerrilla leaned heavily on the support of President 'Lula' in the contest with centrist Jose Serra

FELIPE DANA/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ Dilma Rousseff

A former Marxist guerrilla who was tortured and imprisoned during Brazil's long dictatorship was elected yesterday as president of Latin America's biggest nation.

A statement from the Supreme Electoral Court, which oversees elections, said governing party candidate Dilma Rousseff won the election. When she takes office Jan. 1, she will be Brazil's first female leader.

With nearly 95 per cent of the ballots counted, Rousseff had 55.6 per cent compared to 44.4 per cent for her centrist rival, Jose Serra, the electoral court said.

Rousseff, the hand-chosen candidate of wildly popular President Luiz Inacio Lula da Silva, won by cementing her image to Silva's, whose policies she promised to continue.

Investors brace for deluge of November data

Sept. and Oct. tend to be two worst trading months

November trading appears set to get off to a cautious and potentially volatile start.

Investors will be weighing the U.S. midterm elections, the latest snapshot of American manufacturing, employment data and, most important, a long-anticipated move by the Federal Reserve to deliver another dose of stimulus to the ailing U.S. economy.

"The good news is we have just come through two months that are usually fraught with some of the most risk for equity markets, so from a seasonal standpoint, it actually gets fairly friendly for equities," observed BMO Capital Markets deputy economist Doug Porter.

Stock markets made it through September and October on improving economic data and positive corporate earnings for the third quarter.

But in particular, markets got a boost from rising expectations that the Feds would step in to encourage lending and hopefully lift the economy by another round of buying U.S. government bonds, a measure known as quantitative easing. It involves the printing of huge amounts of U.S. dollars and speculation about the size and duration of such stimulus has made for a much weaker greenback over the last two months.

THE UNLIKELY CAT WHISPERER OF TORONTO

Urban Compass

CAROLYN MORRIS

He's tall and burly, wears jeans, running shoes, a baseball cap and drives a black Dodge Ram.

A light-brown goatee toughens his rounded face. Everyday, he puts in long hours of physical labour for a landscape company. But after work, Bob Swiderski feeds stray cats.

"This is Romeo," he tells me, crouching next to a small orange cat as it laps up a pile of wet food in a back alley near Gerrard Street East and Greenwood Avenue. "And see the head poking out from behind the fence? That's Blackie."

Swiderski looks out for one of Toronto's many colonies of feral or stray cats. It started when his sister told him about an old garage filled with stray cats four years ago. Swiderski felt sorry for them and brought food, and the next day, he couldn't stop thinking about how hungry the cats would be. So he came back with more.

Everyday for the past four years, he has come to the alley, pouring piles of dry food from a plastic jug and opening cans of wet food as cats scurry around him. Besides the food, he's also built Styrofoam shelters for the winter — one local resident let him put them in her backyard. Overall, he spends about $100 a week on his feline mission.

"With the help of Toronto Cat Rescue and the Annex Cat Rescue, he began trapping the cats in his colony, to have them spayed or neutered, de-wormed and vaccinated. So far he's caught 50 cats. Most are released, but some, especially kittens, are adopted..."

"I'm actually embarrassed. It's silly," he says. "Trust me, I'm a normal person."

As the colony grew and he began to wonder when this would end, he started to reach out to a community of feral cat devotees in the city. With the help of Toronto Cat Rescue and the Annex Cat Rescue, he began trapping the cats in his colony, to have them spayed or neutered, de-wormed and vaccinated. So far he's caught 50 cats. Most are released, but some, especially kittens, are adopted into homes. He's even taken one of the cats in himself.

It's a big commitment. He's had to turn down landscaping work in cottage country, and finds it hard to explain, "I can't go, got to feed cats." He remembers the incredulous looks he got when he told his colleagues at work about his project.

"Guys who used to fear me — don't so much anymore," he says, laughing.

Discoverer of insulin

Worth mentioning

A life-saving discovery

TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE FILE PHOTO

INSULIN. Sir Frederick Banting awoke early on Oct. 31, 1920 with an idea that some call the most important medical discovery of the 20th century — insulin. His discovery would eventually lift a death sentence for millions of people around the globe who suffered from diabetes.

A three-metre-high sculpture by local artist Daniel Castillo was to be unveiled yesterday at Banting's London, Ont., home to mark the milestone's 90th anniversary.

The doctor had prepared a lecture on diabetes that he was to give on Nov. 1. Trying to read himself to sleep the night of Oct. 30, he perused an article about the pancreas.

In his own words, he said, "The lecture I prepared and the article I read had chased each other in my mind. At 2 a.m. they came together. I got up. I wrote it down."'

Banting teamed up with Prof. John James Rickard Macleod, Charles Best and Dr. James Bertram Collip at the University of Toronto. Early experiments were on dogs in 1921. The first successful insulin test on a human came in 1922.

At age 32, Banting became the first Canadian — and youngest person — to win the Nobel Prize in Physiology or Medicine.

Metro Minute at Organic Oven

People with food allergies know what it's like to walk past an open bakery, with its unearthly smells of cinnamon, chocolate and churned butter, and watch the people inside devour flaky pastries and smile (because life with pastries is a beautiful one indeed), while you weep bitter, salty tears at the window.

Dry your eyes, little one. Organic Oven Bakery and Café at 3189 Yonge St. is dedicated to everything you've ever loved about life, but in a variety of flourless, dairy-free, eggless and low-glycemic options. Their multigrain gluten-free buns are without peer, and after polishing off a slice of vegan black forest cake, you'll forget Patachou even exists. Well, sort of.

Saw returns

Psychokiller Jigsaw has come back to life at the box office.

Saw 3D, the seventh installment in the series about Jigsaw's legacy of bloody terror, debuted as the Halloween weekend's No. 1 movie with $24.2 million.

That was $10 million more than last year's Saw VI, the first dud in the annual horror franchise. But it still was a modest return compared to earlier chapters in the Saw series, whose previous sequels all had topped $30 million over opening weekend.

The Saw 3D debut also was soft compared to the previous weekend's No. 1 movie, Paranormal Activity 2, a newer fright franchise that opened with $40.7 million. Paranormal Activity 2 slipped to No. 2 this weekend, raising its total to $65.7 million.

Watts goes from mom to CIA spy

NED EHRBAR

METRO WORLD NEWS IN LOS ANGELES

When Naomi Watts was cast as outed CIA agent Valerie Plame in Fair Game, director Doug Liman had just one criticism of her.

"Doug said, 'You're too soft and maternal, and you're going to boot camp,'" she remembers. "I did some paramilitary training for three days. So don't mess with me."

The reason she looked a bit maternal, of course, was because she had just given birth to her second son with husband Liev Schreiber.

"Basically, I had a baby on December 13, I read the script on December 28 and we were filming in February," she says.

And while three days may not seem like all that long, the grueling training she went through — alongside actual government trainees — sounds pretty gruesome. At least the details she's allowed to disclose, that is.

"There's one thing I'm not even allowed to talk about," she says. "As Doug walked out, they sort of kicked me in the shins and threw me to the ground and I went, 'Ow!' and he said, 'OK, don't say ow again unless you need to go to the hospital.' So it was intense."

Luckily, she had some support at home, as Schreiber was preparing for another CIA role in Salt while she studied up for Fair Game, which proved convenient.

"It was very funny and very strange to have, first of all, two of us shooting at the same time — that's the first time it ever happened with us — and second of all that we were both playing spies," she says.

▶ What's worse for a teenage brain: Six hours of texts and Facebook or six hours of mindless reruns?

Texting or television, a screen is a screen

In a world where watching TV as a family is so rare that it's verging into the realm of nostalgia, should parents urge their kids to unplug?

Let's face it: Teenagers spend hours texting, socializing on Facebook and playing video games. And it's driving their parents nuts.

Sure, there are real dangers associated with all this screen time — everything from cyberbullying to couch-potato obesity. Not to mention driving while texting, shortened attention spans and Internet porn.

But many of today's parents spent hours as kids sitting in front of screens too — only they were TV screens.

Which raises an interesting question: Is Facebook really worse for teenagers' brains than the mindless reruns of Gilligan's Island that their parents consumed growing up?

Douglas Gentile, a child psychologist and associate professor at Iowa State University in Ames, Iowa, who studies the effects of media on children, says texting, Facebook and video games are not inherently bad. Nor are they inherently better or worse than watching TV, although they do pose different risks, such as cyberbullying.

But research has shown that the more time kids spend in front of screens — whether it's TV or instant-messaging — the worse their school performance. "That doesn't mean it's true for every kid, but it makes sense, that for every hour a kid is playing video games, it's an hour that they're not doing homework or reading or exploring or creating," he said.

Gentile calls this the "displacement hypothesis. If screen time is displacing doing their homework, that's bad. But if their homework is done, well, so what?"

THE CANADIAN PRESS

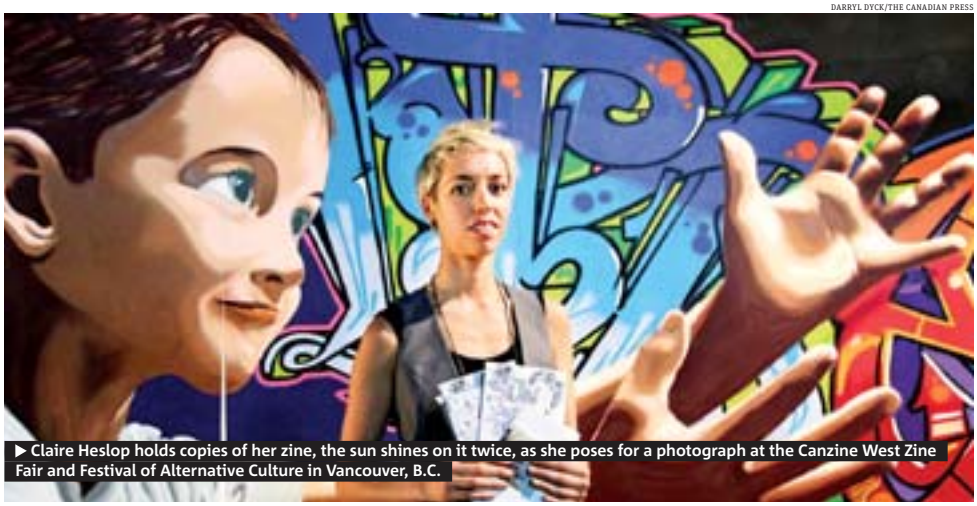
9,000 texts...

- Gentile, who admits that his own teenager crossed the "9,000 texts in one month barrier" last summer, acknowledged that parents are struggling to adjust to a world in which kids would rather look at words on a cellphone screen than have a conversation.
- "To the older generation, it's not their culture," he said. "There is a resistance to it."

Zines still make a scene

When everyone with a keyboard started posting their life's minutiae online, Claire Heslop joined in

DARRYL DYCK/THE CANADIAN PRESS



▶ Claire Heslop holds copies of her zine, the sun shines on it twice, as she poses for a photograph at the Canzine West Zine Fair and Festival of Alternative Culture in Vancouver, B.C.

Yet all the while she was uploading vegan recipes and travel essays, an inner voice kept nagging. In going digital, she had abandoned a cherished outlet of personal self-expression: Making zines.

"(Blogging) didn't really work for me, I didn't get any enjoyment out of it, it didn't feel satisfying," the 29-year-old Vancouver woman said earlier this month, at an indoor zine fair devoted to self-published mini-magazines, poetry chapbooks and comics called Canzine West.

"It's not the same as having a real, small, colourful and crazy interactive piece of something that somebody made by hand for you."

A few years in, Heslop quit the blogosphere and returned to the thrill she first found at age 16. Sporting spiky platinum hair, the UBC medical student was hawking her zine, the sun shines on it twice, for $2 at the fair.

"When people just pick up your stuff and start flipping through it, that's actually the fun part."

Zines (pronounced "zeen") come in all shapes and sizes, often feature a cut 'n' paste or photocopied esthetic and are made by a single creator or group of collaborators. They usually cost less than five bucks a pop, meant solely to cover the cost of materials.

They might be available from a friend, independent bookstore, one of several zine libraries across the country or the annual Canzine fair in Toronto and Vancouver.

Despite today's ubiquitous ease of unloading one's mind-space onto the Internet, zinesters assert their craft is not dead. But it has been changed.

"Before the Internet, zines often took the role of being a voice … but now you can just get a blog," said Tracy Stefanucci, founder of Vancouver-based OCW magazine. "So the role of the zine is changing. You see a lot more art zines — it's print-as-artwork being created, it's people playing with the print medium in a different way."

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Slow decline

In recent years, Hal Niedzviecki — who in zines' heyday in 1995 founded the Canadian magazine Broken Pencil, which reviews zines, underground culture and hosts Canzine — has witnessed a cooling of zinester cachet, from the time when an eye-popping periodical could lead to a book deal. Broken Pencil has seen a decline in zine submissions as well.

Healing power of plants

Medicinal plants are the source of healing for 85 per cent of the world's population

JESSICA CARLESON

METRO WORLD NEWS IN LONDON

▶ Farmers pick marigold flowers at a marigold farm in China.

Name game

- If a plant's Latin name includes officinalis it means it has been used in the practise of medicine. For example: Mandragora officinarum (Mandrake), Melilotus Officinalis (Yellow Sweet Clover) and Sacchrum Officinarum (sugar cane).

Plants have supplied us with remedies for as long as humans have walked the earth.

The knowledge of herbs and flowers and their medicinal properties was once the preserve of wise old women, and has, in later centuries, been taken up by doctors and scientists.

Many of the most common and important drugs used in Western medicine come from medicinal plants and millions of people around the world rely on them as their primary remedies and sources of income. At least 70,000 plants are believed to be medicinal, and many are still undiscovered. Ethnobotanists search tirelessly for new cures worldwide.

Botanic gardens have been involved in the collection and study of medicinal plants for more than 500 years. Nowadays they also play an invaluable role in teaching nature-illiterate city dwellers how to tell plants apart and opening the door to the fascinating history and modern application of medicinal plants.

One such botanic garden is Chelsea Physic Garden, well hidden behind a wall in well-off western London, England.

It is the city's oldest surviving botanic garden and a living and growing museum. The first medicinal plants were brought here when the garden was founded in 1673 by the Society of Apothecaries of London. The study and collection of medicinal plants has continued ever since. In 1983 they opened their gates to the public and now the charity offers tours of their pharmaceutical beds and the Garden of World Medicine.

"We never tell people to use a plant to treat an ailment. We only say it has been or is being used to do so," said the gardens curator, Rosie Atkins.

Using medicinal plants requires knowledge, what is beneficial in small amounts may be dangerous and even deadly if you ingest too much. Interest in herbal medicine is growing and medical plants are clearly important for the future.

"Look at Avian flu. Star anise was used to create Tamiflu," said Rosie.

So, next time you have an Aspirin remember you've got Meadowsweet (Spiraea Ulmaria) to thank for getting rid of your headache.

PULLING BACK THE CURTAIN

Queen of Green

LINDSAY COULTER
GREEN@METRONEWS.CA

I recently saw you on TV talking about toxins in personal care products. Was Vaseline included in your list of products to avoid?
Susan from Vancouver, BC

The David Suzuki Foundation compiled the results of our survey of the toxic ingredients found in the cosmetics of Canadians. We asked people to pull back the shower curtain and look for the Dirty Dozen lurking in their soaps and shampoos.

Although we're unable to recommend brands, check the ingredient list of your product. Chances are it contains petrolatum, one of our Dirty Dozen.

Petrolatum is found in many hair care products, lip balms, and skin care products.

It's also known as mineral oil jelly, and it's used as a barrier to lock moisture in the skin, and in hair care products to make hair shine.

But this petrochemical can be contaminated with cancer-causing polycyclic aromatic hydrocarbons.

The European Union considers it a carcinogen and restricts its use in cosmetics. Download our wallet-sized Sustainable Shopper's Guide at davidsuzuki.org so you can avoid petrolatum and the other eleven toxic ingredients commonly found in your soap, shampoo, and deodorant.

Get cooking for Diwali

Next time you have a hankering for Indian food, don't think takeout ◗ Think ahead

LARRY CROWE/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Spiced cauliflower and potatoes.

That's the message from Anupy Singla, author of The Indian Slow Cooker, who is on a mission to correct misperceptions about Indian food — that it's heavy; that you have to buy 100 spices to make anything; that it's hot; that it's labour intensive.

And to help her get out the message of ease, she enlisted that most ubiquitous of American kitchen tools, the slow cooker.

"It's a very traditional way of Indian cooking, where things are breaking down over hours and hours," says Singla, who came to the U.S. from India's Punjab region when she was three. She says slow cookers actually have much in common with the old clay ovens found in Indian villages. "You get that taste and that feeling with the slow cooker."

And with Nov. 5 marking the start of Diwali — the Indian festival of lights — it's a great time to test her theory. Because with a focus on presents, visiting friends and family, giving thanks for good fortune and eating (a lot) it's easy to see the appeal of Diwali for anyone.

Here are some tips from Singla to get you started.

Spice it up

Just seven basic spices will get you started: Red chili powder, ground coriander, black mustard seeds, turmeric powder, black salt (kala namak), garam masala and cumin seeds. These form the foundation of North Indian cooking, and can be found in most grocers.

Fear not the hot

Made at home, Indian food is only as spicy as you want it to be. "There's a misconception that Indian food has to be hot, but it's more flavourful than anything else," Singla says.

Dump and go

Which means dust off that slow cooker you got as a wedding gift. The slow cooker brings out the flavour in lentils, curries and other Indian dishes, and does it while you're at work. "Once you do the preparation by purchasing the spices, it's dump and go," Singla says.

For Diwali, which is a meatless holiday for many Indians, Singla suggests starting with rajmah (curried kidney beans), rase wale aloo (spicy potatoes in broth) or spiced cauliflower and potatoes. "There's no standard menu for Diwali, but those hit upon the most popular recipes from the north," Singla says. "And you have to have a dessert because Diwali is all about the sweets."

For that, she suggests kheer, a cardamom-scented rice pudding studded with raisins. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Don't worry

- Remember that in a country where many people cook over a single gas burner, home-style food was designed to be simple. "Indian food is supposed to be very easy," Anupy Singla, author of The Indian Slow Cooker, says.

METRO

"I was born in the middle of nowhere and always wore rubber boots to do chores." Evan Chrapko is on the phone from Beijing, China where he's working on a huge biofuel deal. He's a long way from the Two Hills farm in northeastern Alberta where he grew up, the son of a farmer who always told him to dream big.

Chrapko is a chartered accountant and holds a law degree from an Ivy League school in New York. He ended up in Toronto after graduating and linked up with a software company. For two years Evan and his brother Shane lived on Kraft dinner and the vegetables they grew in their backyard until their hard work and sacrifice paid off. After turning down several lucrative offers they finally sold DocSpace, a Web-based file delivery and storage company for $811 million.

Chrapko currently runs six companies and is now blazing a trail through China, India and Pakistan selling technology that will convert biowaste into clean energy. As Chrapko looks back on his success he seems philosophical. "Success has a thousand fathers. Be grounded and centred in your own self worth and don't let anyone tell you it can't be done. Persistence and perseverance are the keys to achieving success."

As Chrapko says goodbye from the airport in Beijing you can tell he's proud of his values and his solid Alberta farm roots. Besides, this is one multi-millionaire who knows once he's done with the executive board rooms around the world he'll be expected back home. His old rubber work boots are waiting.

Is education out of reach?

University enrolment is up, but student leaders decry skyrocketing tuition More funding sought

Rising enrolment rates at Canadian universities were hailed last week as a future boon to the Canadian economy, but student advocates warned skyrocketing tuition is putting post-secondary education out of reach for many students.

The Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada reported that overall, university enrolment increased 3.7 per cent over last year and 57 per cent from 1995. There were 898,000 full-time university students registered this fall.

That's good news for the economy, because university graduates represent about a quarter of the working population but are about 40 per cent of the tax base, said association president Paul Davidson.

"To be able to afford the quality of life, the standard of living and the quality of public services that we have in Canada requires these kind of high-quality jobs that university graduates are getting," Davidson said.

The rise in undergraduate students ranged from 0.7 per cent in Newfoundland and Labrador to 4.5 per cent in British Columbia. The hike in graduate students varied from one per cent in Manitoba to 17.6 per cent in Prince Edward Island, the report found.

University graduates increase Canada's productivity and innovation, said Davidson. They also make more money.

They're also more likely to get jobs in an economy that's transitioning from being resource based to knowledge based.

"Over a lifetime you can expect to earn $1.5 million more if you have a university degree than if you just finished high school."
PAUL DAVIDSON

Over the last 20 years, about 87 per cent of the new professional and management positions created were filled by university graduates, while jobs for high school graduates disappeared, the report said.

University graduates also emerged from the recent recession in a better position.

From September 2008 until September 2010, there were 280,000 net new jobs for university graduates while 260,000 for workers without a degree evaporated.

The enrolment figures were discussed as Davidson and 40 university presidents met Thursday with almost 20 MPs, cabinet ministers and other senior officials on Parliament Hill as part of their annual conference.

Davidson gave the government high marks for the "biggest single capital investment in a generation" in post-secondary infrastructure through the federal stimulus program. His association will seek continued government investment for research as it submits its pre-budget wish list to the Commons Finance Committee next week.

His call for more funding was echoed by The Canadian Federation of Students.

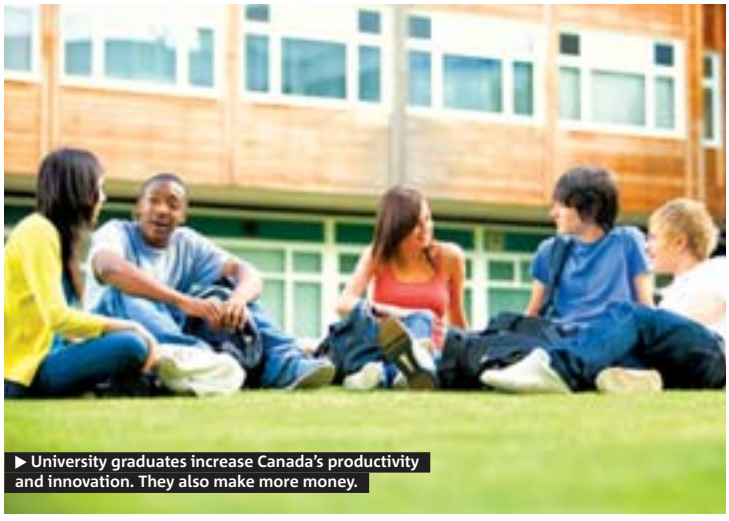
Seven in 10 new jobs require a post-secondary education, but for some students that's tough to afford, said the chairwoman of the federation's Ontario division.

Annual tuition fees vary widely, from about $2,500 in Newfoundland and Labrador to Ontario, where they're highest at an average of $6,300, said Sandy Hudson.

The cost forces some students to drop out. Others are left with staggering debt.

"I'm $35,000 in debt and I just finished my post-secondary education – my undergraduate degree – in June," said Hudson.

Hudson said she'd need to go to graduate school to make use of her sociology and political science degree, but might not be able to afford that.



▶ University graduates increase Canada's productivity and innovation. They also make more money.

More than 39,000 people have signed the federation's petition calling on the federal government to create a national post-secondary education act and restore funding for post-secondary education to 1992 levels.

■ FREE MIRACLE HEATERS ARE ON THE WAY: Everyone wants to stay warm and save money on their heat bills this winter. These trucks are being loaded full of Heat Surge Roll-n-Glow® infrared fireplaces and will soon be ready to go. The oak mantle is a real steal at just three hundred and forty-eight dollars plus shipping and tax because the first 3,908 readers who beat the order deadline by calling 1-866-964-4319 to order the fireplace mantles are actually getting the Heat Surge miracle infrared heaters absolutely free.

Canadians have just 48 hours to get free heaters

Miracle infrared heaters are being given away free to the first 3,908 readers who beat the order deadline for real Amish fireplace mantles handmade for the breakthrough invention that drastically slashes heat bills

Save money: uses about the same electric as a coffee maker, so turn your thermostat way down and never be cold again

By R.K. Berry
Universal Media Syndicate

UMS – Have you heard about the free heater giveaway that's sweeping across the state?

Well listen up because here it is and we'll even give you the number to call.

Starting at precisely 8:30am this morning, brand new infrared miracle heaters are actually being given away free to the general public for the next 48 hours.

The only thing today's readers need to do is call the Toll Free Hotline before the 48-hour deadline with their order for the handmade Amish Fireplace Mantle. The first 3,908 readers who do will instantly be awarded the Heat Surge infrared miracle heater absolutely free.

This is all happening to announce the new Heat Surge Roll-n-Glow infrared fireplace which actually rolls from room-to-room so you can turn your thermostat way down and never be cold again. That way, everyone who gets them first can immediately start saving on their heat bills.

Just in time for the bitter cold winter weather, portable Amish encased fireplaces are being delivered directly to the doors of all those who beat the deadline.

These remarkable new infrared heaters are being called a miracle because they have the Fireless Flame® technology that gives you the peaceful flicker of a real fire but without any flames, fumes, ashes or mess. Everyone is getting them because all you do is plug them in.

And here's the best part. Readers who beat the 48-hour order deadline are getting their new infrared miracle heaters free when encased in the Amish built real wood fireplace mantles. The mantles are being handmade in Ohio, right in the heart of Amish country where they are beautifully hand-rubbed, stained and varnished.

You just can't find custom made Amish mantles like this in the national chain stores. That makes the oak mantle a real steal for just three hundred forty-eight dollars since the entire cost of the new infrared miracle heater is free.

The Amish handmade mantle actually lets the new infrared miracle heater roll from room-to-room. These fireplaces are so compact they go anywhere, yet they throw off an instant heat wave in any room. And they only use about the same electric as a coffee maker, so it's easy to stay warm in any room of the house for just pennies a day.

"You see, with your furnace you are paying to heat areas of your home that you're not using. And since the new infrared miracle heater only uses about 7¢ an hour of electricity on the standard setting, the potential energy savings are absolutely incredible," said Laura Rich, Operations Director.

"We're trying to make sure no one gets left out, but you better hurry because we only have 3,908 infrared miracle heaters to hand out to today's readers for free. For now, readers can have two free per household just as long as they call before the deadline," confirms Rich.

Getting the Heat Surge Roll-n-Glow fireplace is the smart way to slash winter heat bills and still stay warm all winter long. And getting the new infrared miracle heater free is like putting about three hundred and fifty bucks in your pocket and you can save even more on your monthly heat bills.

"We're bracing ourselves for all the calls because everyone wants to save on their heat bills and stay warm this winter. But those that really want to save a ton will be telling our operators they want two Amish fireplace mantles and they'll get two miracle heaters free," said Rich.

"So when the lines are busy keep trying. We promise to get every call. Then we'll have a delivery truck out to you in no time at all so you can stay warm and start saving on your heat bills right away," Rich said.

"You'll instantly feel the bone soothing heat in any room. You will never have to be cold and miserable again," she said. ■

On the worldwide web:
www.amishfireplaces.com

■ AMISH QUALITY: Amish craftsmen take great pride in their workmanship. Each Amish fireplace mantle is hand crafted to the highest standards and is built to last a lifetime. With four finishes to choose from they are sure to make any room look like a million bucks.

■ SAVES ON BILLS: Everyone gets lower heat bills and still stays warm. The new Heat Surge infrared heater only uses 7¢ an hour of electricity on the standard setting, yet blasts out an instant heat wave in any room to keep you warm all day long for just pennies.

■ SAFE: The new Heat Surge infrared heater looks so real it fools everyone but there is no real fire. So you don't have to worry because the flame window is safe to the touch. It's where the kids will play and the cat and dog will sleep.

■ DELIVERED FULLY ASSEMBLED: Every Heat Surge Roll-n-Glow fireplace comes fully assembled by Amish craftsmen and is delivered right to your door. All you do is roll it out of the box, plug it in and relax in front of the Fireless Flame.

How to get your free heater

Readers need to call the Toll Free Hotlines beginning at 8:30am this morning. If lines are busy keep trying, all calls will be answered. However, if you miss the deadline you will be turned away from this free offer and forced to wait for future announcements in this or other U.S. publications, if any.

The first 3,908 readers who beat the 48-hour deadline to order the Amish made fireplace mantle plus shipping and tax get the Heat Surge infrared miracle heater absolutely free.

They have imposed a strict limit of 2 free infrared heaters per household. So, readers need to hurry and call now because there are only 3,908 Heat Surge miracle heaters to be given away free, when they're gone, they're gone.

Use the map below to find the weather zone you live in and call the number for your zone.

INFRARED HEAT: bringing home the warmth of the sun

Heats quickly and evenly while staying cool to the touch

How Infrared Works: Heat Surge infrared technology safely heats a room faster and more effectively than typical space heaters. That's because it uses the same kind of heat energy as the sun, the far infrared rays of the light spectrum. Though invisible, this heat energy can be felt every day when standing in the sunshine. This new advanced heating system warms more than just the air, it heats objects like furniture, walls and people for a warm and comfortable home. It even comes with a full year limited replacement or money back warranty. And the Heat Surge infrared heater has received certification of Underwriters Laboratories coveted UL listing.

A bad day for Brett Favre

Vikings quarterback leaves game with injury, while his team falls to 2-5 Moss has just one catch in his return to New England

WINSLOW TOWNSON/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Brett Favre rubs his eyes after being hit by New England Patriots linebacker Gary Guyton yesterday.

Tom Brady connected with Brandon Tate for a 65-yard touchdown on a broken play to give the New England Patriots a 28-18 victory over the Minnesota Vikings yesterday, knocking Brett Favre out of the game in the process.

"I hope Favre's OK," Brady said.

Favre left in the fourth quarter after being slammed to the turf; the team said he had a cut in his chin that needed 10 stitches. Backup Tarvaris Jackson threw for a touchdown on his first play and a two-point conversion on his second, but he didn't get the ball back until the two-minute warning had sounded and the Vikings trailed by 10.

PATRIOTS	VIKINGS

BenJarvus Green-Ellis had two touchdowns,scoring his first on a 13-yard run to make it 21-10. Favre then drove Minnesota (2-5) to the New England three-yard line before he was flattened by defensive lineman Myron Pryor.

Jackson relieved him and threw a one-yard touchdown pass to Naufahu Tahi on the first play, then hit Percy Harvin for the two-point conversion that made it 21-18. But Brady engineered a 13-play, 80-yard drive, with Green-Ellis getting cartwheeled into the end zone to make it 28-18 with just 1:56 left.

Brady completed 16-of-27 passes for 240 yards and Green-Ellis ran 17 times for 112 yards to give the Patriots (6-1) their fifth straight victory.

Favre was 22 for 32 for 259 yards, throwing an interception on a tipped ball and taking two intentional grounding penalties when he tried to avoid sacks. Adrian Peterson carried 25 times for 92 yards, and Harvin caught six passes for 104 yards for the Vikings despite missing about a quarter with an ankle injury.

Former Patriot Randy Moss had just one catch for eight yards in his first trip back to Foxborough since he talked himself out of town on Oct. 6.

Westwood is golf's new No. 1

For the first time in more than five years, Tiger Woods is no longer golf's No. 1 player.

Lee Westwood of England took the top ranking Sunday after PGA champion Martin Kaymer failed to finish among the top two at the Andalucia Masters in Spain.

Westwood is the first European since Nick Faldo in 1994 to be No. 1, and the 13th player to be No. 1 since the ranking system began in 1986.

Woods had been No. 1 since the week before the 2005 U.S. Open. He won the British Open a month later and his ranking has rarely been threatened since.

Ryan Succop kicked a 34-yard field goal as time expired in overtime to lift the Kansas City Chiefs to a victory over the winless Buffalo Bills yesterday.

The Bills (0-7), who lost in overtime to Baltimore the week before, are off to the third-worst start in franchise history.

Buffalo will play its next game Nov. 7 against Chicago at Rogers Centre in Toronto.

Jaguars 35, Cowboys 17
David Garrard tied a club record with four touchdown passes and ran for another in leading the Jacksonville Jaguars to a victory over the Dallas Cowboys.

The Cowboys (1-5) continued their worst start since 1989. The disturbing part for Dallas is that this one wasn't even close; all previous losses were by a touchdown or less.

Lions 37, Redskins 25
Matthew Stafford's fourth touchdown pass converted a fourth down with 3:12 left and the Detroit Lions scored nine points in 14 seconds to turn a closely contested game into a win over the Washington Redskins.

Stafford played for the first time since Week 1 when he separated his right shoulder on a sack.

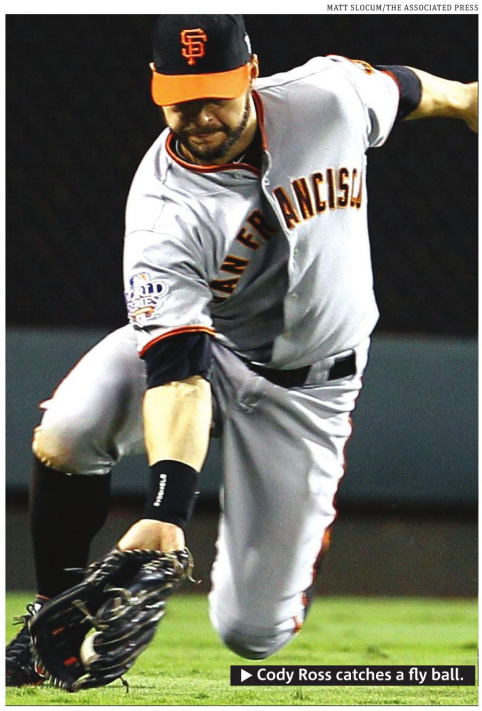
Giants are one win away

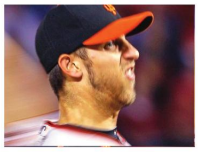
- Rookie San Francisco pitcher keeps Texas offence off the board
- Huff, Posey hit homers to help team improve to 3-1 in World Series

MATT SLOCUM/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS



▶ Cody Ross catches a fly ball.

Bumgarner basics



- At 21, Madison Bumgarner became the fifth-youngest pitcher to start in a World Series. Bullet Joe Bush was 20 for the Philadelphia Athletics in 1913.
- Bumgarner didn't permit a runner past first base until the seventh. Facing his only jam, he retired Ian Kinsler on a fly ball to strand two runners and preserve a 3-0 lead.
- Bumgarner struck out Vladimir Guerrero three times, the first time the star Texas designated hitter had done that this season.

Madison Bumgarner pitched way beyond his years, moving the San Francisco Giants within one win of an elusive World Series title.

The rookie pitcher dominated for eight innings, Aubrey Huff and Buster Posey homered and the Giants put on a fielding clinic in Game 4, beating Texas 4-0 last night.

Dressed in black and orange, the Giants were spooky good in taking a 3-1 edge. Bumgarner allowed only three hits and took all the fun out of a festive, Halloween crowd.

"I can't say enough about what he did," Giants manager Bruce Bochy said.

Ace Tim Lincecum will try tonight to deliver the Giants' first championship since they moved to San Francisco in 1958. Now it's up to Cliff Lee to save the Rangers' season in Game 5.

GIANTS	RANGERS

The 21-year-old Bumgarner and closer Brian Wilson helped the Giants become the first team to post two shutouts in a World Series since Baltimore threw three straight to close out the Dodgers in 1966.

"I thought the pitching was the thing tonight," Texas manager Ron Washington said. "And their defence."

Huff's two-run homer in the third gave Bumgarner all the support he needed. Posey added a solo shot in the eighth — Bumgarner and Posey became the first rookie battery to start in the Series since Spec Shea and Yogi Berra for the Yankees in 1947.

Even though Bumgarner got relief help, it was a complete game for the Giants. Andres Torres and Edgar Renteria each got three hits and their teammates made almost every play in the field.

Make it great D in Big D.

Left-fielder Cody Ross came up with a shoestring catch, second baseman Freddy Sanchez made a leaping grab and Posey threw out Josh Hamilton trying to steal. Bumgarner helped himself, too, knocking down Hamilton's scorcher up the middle.

Today's horoscope

For today's crossword answers and for expanded horoscopes, go to metronews.ca

♈ Aries March 21-April 20 You may be assertive by nature but the current cosmic climate urges you to look for ways to get on with people, not ways to beat them

♉ Taurus April 21-May 21 Something unexpected will occur today, something that makes you realize how fragile our world can be. The good news is that while others are panicking left, right and center you will keep your head and do the right thing.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 You will find it easy to make changes today but you won't find it so easy to change back again later, so get it right or leave well alone.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 There are more than enough good things to go around, so don't approach each and every situation as if it is some kind of contest.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug.23 If something of a minor nature goes wrong today don't overreact and make a big deal of it.

♍ Virgo Aug. 24- Sept. 22 Something fortunate will happen today but you may not realize just how beneficial it is until later in the week. Travel and social activities are especially well starred now, so get out and about and make new friends.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 It's not enough just to have a good idea, you have also got to be motivated enough to turn that idea into reality. Are you?

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 Do you sit back and watch the world go by or do you get up and get involved? Today's Venus-Pluto link may make you somewhat lethargic but that's okay because later in the week you will come to life again

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 Don't be too eager to apologize if you have to shove someone out of the way today – it's their fault for moving so slowly and meandering all over the place.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 You will have to deal with someone today who, to put it politely, is a little slow-witted. It may be a pain having to spell everything out in words of two syllables but make the effort.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 Someone is trying to sow seeds of doubt in your mind and if they succeed your dream will never come true.

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20 It might be wise not to draw attention to yourself today because there are things you will be doing that work best if you haven't got people looking over your shoulder the whole time. SALLY BROMPTON
